

Name: _____

Hot Cocoa

In the cozy kitchen, a dance begins,
Where warmth swirls in a cup's embrace.
A symphony of scents fills the air,
As cocoa whispers tales of comfort.

Milk and chocolate, a waltz they share,
Melting together in sweet harmony.
Steam rises like whispers of secrets,
Promising joy in every sip.

Marshmallow clouds float gently by,
Softening the edges of the cold.
In my hands, this mug holds magic,
A potion of coziness and delight.

Winter's chill is no match for this brew,
As laughter mingles with chocolatey bliss.
In each sip, a story unfolds,
Of cozy nights and hearts aglow.

1. Is this a rhyming or free verse poem? _____
2. How is cocoa personified in the fourth line of the poem? _____

3. What is the steam compared with in second stanza? _____
4. How does the author describe the combination of milk and chocolate?
 - a) They clash and do not mix well
 - b) They create a bitter taste when combined
 - c) They melt together in sweet harmony
 - d) They create a fizzy reaction when mixed