

Sentences

A sentence has a naming and a telling part. The telling part tells what happened. Some sentences have a word that tells where or how something happens. The telling part of a sentence is called a preposition.

The bears skate at the park.

My monkey ate the banana.

